He saw that the man was dead and notified the selectmen's office, and shortly after Coroner Franklin H. Brown was informed of the case by Street Commissioner Lillibridge. The coroner went up about 2 o'clock in Undertaker C. A. Gager's auto-ambulance.

Suspended by Five-Foot Wire, The body of a man about 65 years of age was hanging from the limb of a tree by a twisted wire around his neck five feet long, so that he swung about 18 inches above the ground. The tree was about eight inches in diameter and the bruises on the bark of the trunk and several limbs indicated that the man had climbed up, fastened the wire to the limb and then let himself down. His gold Waltham watch was down. His gold Waltham watch was still running when the coroner arrived. still running when the coroner arrived.
The suicide appeared to be a German about 55 years of age. His height was about five feet, seven or eight inches, and his weight 170 pounds. He was of light complexion, with gray hair and mustache, and a three or four days' growth of beard. He wore a blue serge suit of clothes and tan shoes. To his gold watch was attached by a leather strap a bright metal fob in the form of a bat hearing on one side "Commita hat bearing on one side "Compil-ments of the United Hatters of North America." of the Strenuous Exercise. Officers stationed at Forts Wright Officers stationed at Forts Wright, Terry and Michie, which comprise the coast defenses of Long Island sound, are interested in the announcement that the annual 90 mile horseback ride for officers of the United States army may be abolished. There is a proposition for substituting a 20 mile ride or 10 mile walk each month. Maj. Gen. Hugh L. Scott, chief of staff of the army, has both plans under consideration.

The 10 mile walk is already a rule in the navy, and is being carried on by officers of the navy and of the marine

The 90 mile annual ride has been s rule of the army for the past few years. The officers at the island forts have no horses, so it was necessary for them to get mounts when the time for the ride arrived.
